

A switching signal has been best fit locked to the data.

The ssn is phase inverted to form a bipolar wave using the switch polarity to control switching.

There is an anomaly 1780-90 just before the circa 1800 minima. This is familiar to electronics people, looks like a phase inversion.

What happened?